HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Human Trafficking is the fastest growing crime and the second largest organised crime in the world. Article 23 of the Constitution of India prohibits the trafficking of human beings and forced labour. Various other Indian laws and India's ratification of several international laws also clarifies India's stand on trafficking. In March 2013, India passed the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act of 2013. This Act amended Section 370 of the Indian Penal Code and includes India's first definition of human trafficking.

According to this definition, human trafficking occurs when one person (the trafficker) uses force, fraud or coercion to induce, recruit, harbor or transport another person (the victim) for the purpose of exploitation for his/her own commercial gain. It also defines exploitation as "any act of physical exploitation or any form of sexual exploitation, slavery or practices similar to slavery, servitude, or the forced removal of organs." The Act also clarifies the types of offenses that are criminalised as trafficking violations and institutes heightened sentences for perpetrators.

FORMS OF MORDERN DAY SLAVERY

BONDED LABOUR

Bonded Labour is an oppressive form of force labour where, due to a debt or other obligation (custom, caste-based, economic consideration), the labourer forfeits certain basic rights and freedoms that are guaranteed by the Indian Constitution. Physical violence, verbal insults, brute force and sexual abuse are often common elements in bonded labour making it a serious human rights crime.

The most common form of bonded labour usually entails an advance. Victims accept a petty cash advance from the employer, agreeing to repay the amount through their services. Often, the labourer moves into the worksite with his/her entire family. Once at the worksite, labourers are curtailed from moving around freely, denied the chance to supplement their wages through alternate employment or by selling their goods and also refused the right to be paid the State-recommended wages. They are told that their freedom will be restored only upon repayment of the advance. However, as the labourer soon realises, the entire system has been designed to make repayment impossible. Abysmally low wages, exorbitant interest rates and falsified account-keeping ensure that the illiterate labourer is trapped for years, sometimes generations.

The Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) lists bonded labour as one of the various forms of Human Trafficking in India. Human trafficking is the acquisition of people by improper means such as force, fraud or deception, with the aim of exploiting them. Most times, people are exploited for sex, labour or organs. Human trafficking is a serious offence and can be tried under Section 370 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC). In most cases where people have been trafficked for labour, the conditions are very similar to bonded labour. Most times, bonded labour offenders can be tried both under the Bonded Labour Act as well as under Section 370.

SEX TRAFFICKING

Sex trafficking or commercial sexual exploitation (CSE) is a 'rape for profit' trade, in which victims are kidnapped, coerced, deceived, transported or detained for the purpose of being sexually exploited for commercial gains. Although CSE and related forms of human trafficking clearly violate international human rights conventions, the crime brings in significant profits for the offenders and thus continues to be a growing industry. Once trafficked, the victims face violence on a daily basis. In addition to being raped multiple times a day, both children and forced adults are particularly vulnerable to violent physical abuse from owners, pimps and customers. They are also at a significantly higher risk of contracting HIV or sexually transmitted diseases. Often, they receive a mere fraction of the profits from their exploitation or none at all, making it impossible for them to provide basic amenities for themselves.

Sex trafficking is a criminal offence under Article 23 of the Constitution of India, Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956, and the Indian Penal Code (IPC) regardless of the consent of the victim. If the victims are minor, perpetrators can also be tried under the POCSO (Protection of Children from Sexual Offences) Act, 2012.

INDIAN LAWS PROTECTING VICTIMS OF HUMAN TRAFFICKING

1. The Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956
2. The Bonded Labour System (Abolition) Act, 1976
3. The Child Labour (Prohibition and Regulation) Act, 1986
4. The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection) Act, 2000
5. The Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989
The Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012
6. The Indian Penal Code, 1860 (certain provisions).

DREAM HOUSE HAS BEEN BUILT

Mr. Balaji, his wife, and his two girls were held captive for 9 years in a brick-kiln as a bonded laborer for Rs.50,000 which he borrowed to support his brother-in-law's wedding. The principal amount was deducted from an unfair daily wage of Rs.180 which was the full pay for the entire family's hard work. He experienced physical abuse and false threats each time he took a stand against this injustice. Balaji and his family were rescued and rehabilitated holistically. Balaji's hard work was recently recognized by Tamilnadu state rural livelihood mission and he was appointed as a cluster coordinator to organize his peer rescued bonded laborers into special SHG an initiative by the government of Tamilnadu. Balaji was sanctioned with a long-awaited housing approval from the government. Until then, the family was trying to keep themselves safe in a hut. Balaji was in need of Rs.12,000/- to meet the final stage of his construction. We requested you to support and YOU showed up at the right time. Now, Balaji and his family are living in their dream house because of you.

A DAY IN ULLAVUR

We all are pretty shaken up by the losses endured due to this pandemic especially to the rural people. We decided to give them a break from the world and we organized a cricket tournament between the members of RBLA and Cross Global. RBLA surprised us with their sportsmanship by winning the match twice. The people were so compassionate and gave us so much love. After breathing our lungs out to a wonderful cricket tournament, we shared our love through biriyani. We gathered around, sat under the breezy sky, and filled our stomach and soul.

GRADUATION

BASIC COMPUTER TRAINING COURSE

Basic computer training skill course exclusively curated for the Leaders of Rescued Bonded labour Association by Cross Global. Cross Global started the course for the RBLA leaders on Feb 1st 2020. The syllabus of the course includes all basic operations involved in computing activity.

Students in this course (RBLA leaders) were rescued by Tamil Nadu Government in collaboration with various civil society organizations between the year 2010-2020. The risk they have taken to gain knowledge amidst the struggle they walk through every day for basic livelihood deserves high respect and admiration. They set a perfect example to the world that nothing can stop you from learning.

For the first time, I heard what bonded labour is, and I am really moved by the pain everyone has gone through. I congratulate all the graduates for your hard work for the past months despite the pandemic. Keep pushing yourself and don't stop learning. VISION 2030

By 2030, Cross Global will catalyze a revolution that will End Slavery in our lifetime.

THE PROBLEM

Governments across the world have developed numerous welfare measures to meet the basic needs of their citizens - especially those from poorer sections of society. However, offenders who seek to earn profits through exploitative practices, restrict or cut off access to government's schemes by controlling the vulnerable people using brute force, threats and other forms of abuse. Though countries have strong laws to prevent such atrocities, offenders commit these crimes, unafraid of consequences, due to the lack of implementation of laws. To put an end to this cycle of injustice against people in poverty, Cross Global works collaboratively with government and civil societies by applying the following model

THE MODEL

To End of Poverty requires
End of Violence

To End violence requires
Effective Law Enforcement

OUR SOLUTION

Protect children, women, and men from
Human Trafficking

Partner with the government to
